Concentrating

With all the noise and confusion of 1800 students in movement, the first few days of school can be hectic. One learns that high school requires more effort and greater involvement to survive. Whether faced with the risk of making new friends, trying out for a team, participating in a club activity or enduring SATs, Lexington students require dedication and durability to overcome obstacles.

Lexington students focus themselves on whatever is special to them, for they're determined. They concentrate on whatever interests them, whether it's that extra-special book they've just picked up in the library or the art project they've spent weeks on.

Lexington High is a place where each individual can concentrate on his or her own special contribution to the school.

Through The Day

"Was that the first or second bell?" is often asked by students as they come into school. Be it by foot, bus, or car, LHS students stumble in, hopefully before the Pledge of Allegiance is over. Forty minute classes are an oasis in the middle of the week — a welcome change from the usual fifty-five minutes. As the end of class is signaled, students seize the opportunity to enjoy the campus during five minutes of passing time. However, walking across campus isn't always safe. Future football stars practice tosses in the quad, but their aim doesn't get a passing grade! Frisbee players are a new breed of athlete with equally as faulty aim! Others use their five minutes for greeting friends, basking in the sun, or eating a quick breakfast. A lot can be accomplished if one makes creative use of a short time.

Lunch is a welcomed break after three or four morning classes. Inflation has increased the price of lunches and made the once inexpensive meals seem like an exorbitant luxury. Some seniors can still remember when milk was only 5¢, and lunch was just 50¢. But inflation hasn't touched the atmosphere surrounding lunch block. It is still a time to relax and eat, talk to friends, or finish up homework for an afternoon class. Waiting in line for a meal eats up the half-hour and lunch passes all too quickly. Then it's time for a quick goodbye to friends and a mad rush to get to next classes follows, but eventually 2:25 rolls around. Such activities as a team practice, an after school job, or a session at home watching "General Hospital" are a welcome relief. Whatever one does after school, one thing is certain — 2:25 is the best time of day!

Hanging Out

Throughout any day at LHS people are seen congregating at popular "hangouts". Students gather in the Main Quad to complain about many hours of homework done the previous night, or to plan a rendezvous for lunch.

House cafeterias are favorite meeting places whether it be for snacks or hot lunch, the lunch rooms are heavily frequented. Many students, however, opt for a more scenic surrounding and share the Senior Quad, during lunch, with Frisbee enthusiasts, gathering for rigorous games of "ultimate".

A quick football game can be joined between classes outside of C-house. Spectators are accommodated by the steps and "logs" outside of the Science building.

Finally, class members can be found in the Library in various stages of study and conversation.

No matter when, it is easy for one to locate a sizeable crowd at one of the established "hangouts" of the extensive LHS campus.

Time Out

Amidst the hustle and bustle of a typical schoolday at Lexington High School, students find many ways to relax and fill that almost non-existent free time. The diversity of our students is reflected in the vast range of activities they choose to engage in. For instance, one is hardpressed to walk through the Senior quad on a sunny day without having to duck a frisbee or two. Nor can one pass through the G-House cafeteria without over-hearing the sounds of a group of very enthusiastic chess players. The main quad sports flying frisbees and footballs, chattering students, and daydreaming poets. There are, too, the expected extra-curricular activities: cheerleading, junior varsity and varsity athletic teams, drama clubs, a debate team, and musical groups. No matter which or how many of these activities one chooses to be involved in, Lexington High School offers innumerable things to do during one's free time.

Working and Playing

Rich Gillis and Marco Dirks take a look at the books during lunch.

Through each period of the day students at Lexington High School are working and playing, giving school a distinctive character. Lunch blocks are always spent in the most unusual ways. Students often sit in the sun or hide from the snow while they meet with friends or hurriedly copy that essay due next block. Occasionally some people actually eat lunch at its proper time.

From study halls of twenty and tables of four in the library, to crowded lunch rooms and open quads, students participate in a variety of pastimes. Some enjoy reading quietly in their free block or catching up on homework, while others use the time to talk with friends or relax outside.

Communicating

One often associates communication with television, radio, and literature; yet, broadcasting and journalism are not the only means of communicating in today's society. This ever-changing and expanding field touches every aspect of our lives. From computerized business transactions to the performance of mime, people find their own effective ways to convey messages.

At Lexington High School the ever-popular bells and P.A. system, both of which always seem to interrupt our most interesting classes, are likewise not the only form of communication. Teacher conferences, sign-plastered halls, lunch room meetings, crowded phone booths, and class discussions allow each student to find their own successful and unique approach in communicating their thoughts here at Lexington High School.

Cooperating

"I get by with a little help from my friends," sang the Beatles. Today, LHS students still agree with that famous line. Working together, helping, sharing — that's what cooperation is all about. How many science tests would you have failed without the use of your friend's calculator? How many English tests would you have failed if your classmate didn't have an extra pen when yours ran dry in the middle of a test?

LHS students can be seen studying together in the library or outdoors. Last minute cramming for afternoon tests takes place during a quick lunch. During class, homework is often divided up.

Late night calls are also common among LHS students. Be it about a test, an important essay, or just the need to complain, a friend is always there to help! LHS students are proving that two heads are better than one!

Trendsetting

LHS students are highly individual people. They don't follow trends, they set them. Boys often pair a tie with a sweatshirt, or a suit jacket with their favorite pair of jeans. Some even wear wild hats and zany shirts. Girls can be seen wearing a variety of hats — from ones with flowers on them to wide brimmed ones that hide their faces.

Students have also devised some interesting ways to get around school. Having "wheels" doesn't just mean driving a car anymore! Skateboarders and rollerskaters roll through school, tackling the Main Hall stairs with the greatest of ease.

Games people play also reflect current fads. Frisbee throwers compete with jump ropers and football players for a space in the quad. Occasionally a Dungeons and Dragon player may wander into the quad, only to be run over by bicyclists!

Even food is affected by changes. Doughnuts are a popular morning treat, while quick trips downtown produce a lift during the afternoon. One current food fad seems here to stay: dieting.

The dictionary says that a fad is a craze. LHS students are crazy over fads!

After Hours

Diana Doran paints her way through high school.

School does not end at 2:25. After school there may be found groups of students going about various activities. Each individual does what he or she interprets as fun, or merely something after a long day at school, whether that be practicing for a football game, making sets for drama class, developing pictures, or working out with the swim team. These students dedicate themselves to practices, activities, or clubs. It is these often trying, but always enjoyable, work-outs that can make school bearable for those who would otherwise be miserable. People develop close relations through shared stress with teachers and one another. Obviously, life does not start and end with academics. Participating in diverse activities at L.H.S. shows the students' willingness to have broad learning experiences.

Off Guard

The irresistible urge to close your eyes, or to rest your head on the desk and fantasize is one that most everyone at school has felt at one time or another. The extent of this fantasizing varies with each individual. For some, it's thoughts of next weekend. For others it may be thoughts of a "10" or curiosity about the next episode of General Hospital. Whether it be during Math class or an English class, everyone is subject to flights of imagination once in a while. To many, it occurs during class, but to others, the fresh outdoors inspires this contagious day-dreaming. A few of the most popular spots for inspirational thoughts or forty winks are the senior quad, American History class, and G-House cafeteria in between chess games. But at the sound of a bell or a nudge from a friend, students awaken from their dreams, and return to the blatant reality of school.

Working And Spending

Once the school day is over, the work really begins. LHS students rush to get to after school jobs that they hold. Familiar faces can be seen behind the counter at Baskin Robbins or in the stock room at Decelle's. The many teen waitors and waitresses at Mario's, Pewter Pot, and Bel Canto are on their feet all day. Others are getting dish pan hands by washing dishes!

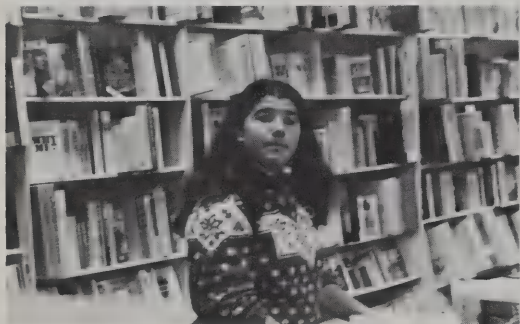

LHS students can be found in the library after school checking out magazines, shelving books, and answering questions. The tables are always full of students working on essays or research papers. Students pouring over back issues of magazines, flipping through rolls of microfilm, and looking for sources keep the library buzzing with activity.

What are the benefits of coming home exhausted late at night and putting in long shifts on weekends? Spending the money for which they have worked so hard!

On half-days, students can be seen eating out at the same restaurants they work for! Pizza, ice cream, hamburgers, Chinese food — hard labor earns these treats! Extra income from work goes into buying the latest records and tapes as well as splurging on a new sweater or two! LHS students spend money on presents for their friends or treats for themselves! Others put all their money into buying or fixing a car!

Hard work gets LHS students in practice for the future!

SOPHMORES

This year yet another group of sophomores have been observed entering LHS, a school which they will regret leaving in a few short years. This new class has come to LHS with the highest of hopes and an ambition to excell, both of which all will hopefully fulfill during their years here.

The sophomores made their presence known from the outset of the year with their capture of the F House snack bar and the claiming of new territory. Upperclassmen soon learned many of the new students' names as a result of election posters stationed around the school, comically adorned with the word "Sophmore", incorrectly spelled. The Monday following elections, results were announced: Hannah Kilson as Class President and Patty Rundlett as Secretary, with run-offs to occur between Frank Vittimberga and Sarah Doherty for Vice President and Kevin Splaine and Steve Marlin for Treasurer. Incidentalyl the positions were won by Vittimberga and Marlin, respectively. The class officers did an excellent job in organizing fund-raisers and social events for the class.

The faculty and upperclassmen are proud to hand over the honor of the title Junior Class to these Sophomores with the hope that they will continue to perform high above school standards.

Servant's Day 1981

One of the most traditional, hilarious and definitely zany events of the fall was the infamous "Senior Servant Day". This year, an unusually large group of 39 seniors volunteered to auction themselves, leaving the bidding open to anyone in the school. The day of the auction began slowly, but by noon there was a continuous group of a dozen or more students avidly trying to outbid, out-yell, and out-manipulate each other; the prospective servants were showing signs of nervousness at the realization that they might be in for more than they bargained for. When the bidding was closed, the "masters" were notified, and the costume-planning began.

When Servant Day arrived, Lexington High sported everything from jailbirds, to Egyptian slaves, to babies in diapers, to football players in dresses. This in itself was amusing, but even more hilarious was to watch these seniors perform their stunts in the main quad during lunch, or to see them walking through Lexington Center clad in their get-ups, faithfully following their masters. It was, indeed, quite a Friday, not soon forgotten.

Application Anxiety

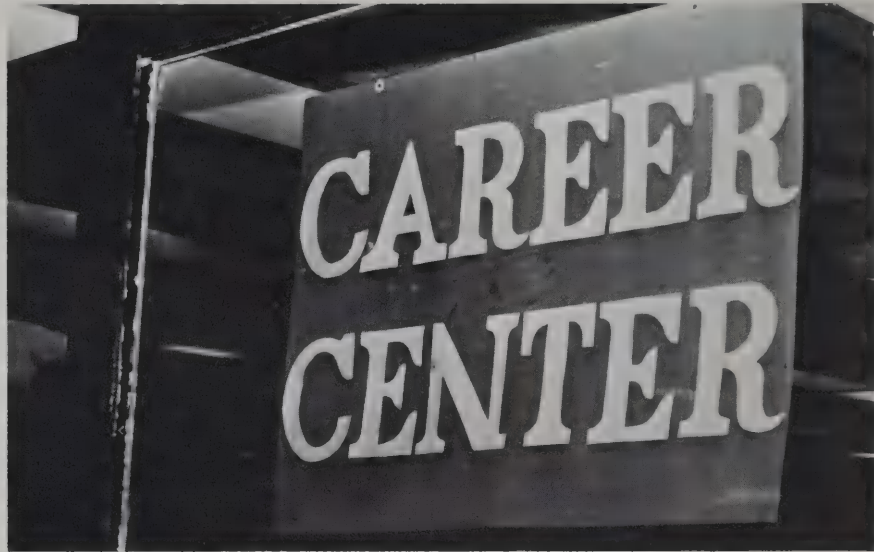

The future centers around the Career Center.

In each graduating class about 75 percent of LHS seniors will continue their studies at a two or four year college. Consequently, most seniors concern themselves not only with regular schoolwork, but also the added homework of finding the "right" college.

By attending the career center college fairs, students can ask provocative questions of the representatives, sometimes provoking truthful answers. After joining innumerable college mailing lists, both juniors and seniors can expect a deluge of mail from schools all over the country. The pitches range from the rousing, "Hey, have we got the college for you!" to the personal, "... is a unique school, especially tailored to meet your needs," to the occasional apologetic entreaties for attention, "Gee, I know this is another form letter, but won't you just read some of it?"

When the field is narrowed to a smaller group, seniors embark on their bold journeys to colleges for tours and interviews in the fall. Though many expect an interrogation, the interviews are usually pleasant conversations in which the interviewee attempts to sound like an intelligent person.

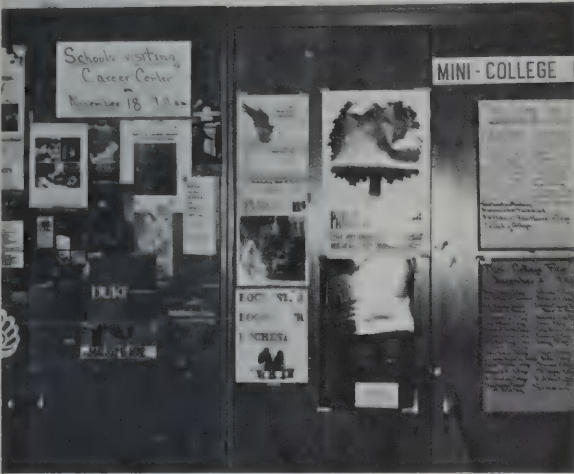

The filling out of the application is yet another task for the already overworked senior. Essays and teacher recommendations must be completed early to avoid a last-day rush to finish the form. The due dates Nov. 15 for Early Decision and Jan. 1 for Regular Decision, are followed by tense weeks of waiting for the colleges to respond. For most of us the news comes on "Bloody Monday" around April 15. Happy tax day, seniors!

In and Out of School

Lexington High School offers its students a unique and worthwhile supplement to their learning experience in the form of the full and part-time internship program and the work study program. In addition to earning course credit, and a salary in the case of work study, students involved in these programs gain valuable information about possible future careers.

The actual internships and job placements are as varied as the career interests of the students who participate in the programs. Interns are currently placed at Children's Hospital, Senator Ted Kennedy's office, the Concord Courthouse, even Gallery on the Green in Lexington. One student currently taking advantage of the work study program is working as an assistant manager at Chadwick's. There are also students working at such places as Wilson's Farm, Woolworks, and Ingall's Stationary.

The Internship and Work-Study programs give students valuable experience that can help them with one of the most important decisions they face in high school — that of career choice.

ACTIVITIES

Extra curricular activities are an important part of an LHS student's life. After school, students can be found at team practices or at student government meetings. Brainstorming sessions of any of the meetings of various clubs are frequent and many students find themselves running from one activity to the next.

Hard work and drained energies do have their rewards. Students take pride in a winning season, a new friend from a foreign country, or a successful club function. Students pour time into raising funds and recruiting members.

LHS truly offers a dazzling assortment of activities to its students. There is so much to choose from that students may find themselves "majoring" in extra-curricular activities.

The Chosen People

Two important select groups at the highschool are the National Honor Society and the Executive House Council. Both groups are geared toward service to the community and school as well as raising money for their respective scholarship funds.

The Executive House Council members are chosen for their leadership as well as their enthusiasm for service. NHS consists of 10% of the senior class and 5% of the junior class. They are selected for their outstanding academic achievement, involvement in community, and extra-curricular activities.

The Executive House Council successfully completed various annual events such as the New Students' Luncheon, the Thanksgiving Day Parade, Globe Santa, L.A.B.B. Christmas Party. Some fundraising events sponsored by NHS were pretzel and lollipop sales and delivering the New York Times. Service-oriented activities included visits to nursing homes, interaction with town organizations, and running school elections.

The students in the Executive House Council and the National Honor Society strive to aid and faithfully represent the community and the school.

The Musket

Putting together a newspaper is no simple task. Students who work for LHS' newspaper, The Musket, learn that quickly. Finding ideas, writing the article, and editing it require skill, determination, and patience. The editors continue the process by refining, typing, and laying out the newspaper.

Editor-in-Chief for the 81-82 school year is Neil Moskow. He heads a group of energetic writers, illustrators, copywriters, and photographers. The Musket is highly acclaimed for its hard hitting news stories and insightful features. The Musket has been the recipient of numerous journalism prizes given to high school newspapers.

Students are recruited at an annual meeting, held at the beginning of the school year. Reporters work closely with their editors in order to provide the freshest news possible. The Musket tackles both light and serious problems and handles each deftly.

Striving for Victory

Success on Lexington's highly competitive debate and math teams demands dedication and perseverance. Debaters spend many long hours researching their topics, preparing arguments, absorbing theory, practicing and actually debating all over the country. Interested math students study the numerous techniques necessary to solve difficult problems. Some of these highly motivated achievers even attend specialized debate and math training institutes in the summer. This year, debaters argued the resolve that the Federal government should establish minimum educational standards for primary and secondary schools. Through their sharp logic, debaters proved that they could withstand any challenge and all competitors. The math team, though few in number, succeeded through their supreme mental agility in overwhelming most opposing teams.

Surrounded by Chinese food at Yangtze, piles of trophies and close friends, every debater affirms the resolve that debate has its good points.

Water and Ice

Although it is small in numbers, the Lexington High School Sailing Club is big on enthusiasm. The club's members go into Boston once a week in the fall and spring and sail in small boats on the Charles River. Discount "T" passes are provided and the boats are rented through a low-cost community program; so little money is needed and everyone has fun.

Another adventuresome group at LHS is the Ski Club. The year begins with a notoriously successful ski sale; the funds are used to subsidize numerous trips to New England ski areas throughout the year. This club combines the enjoyment of skiing with the fun of doing things with a big group of friends.

No matter what the season or the sport, Lexington High School has a club to represent it. The diversity of our students' interests is remarkable, as are the various types of clubs. Whether you like to ski or sunbathe, LHS has a group for you!!

Student Government

Lexington High School represents a diverse student body and, subsequently, a wide range of student activities. One of these organizations is student government which, in itself, exemplifies a broad range of small groups. Each class has an individual elected council, a group of fourteen representatives, and four class officers who plan activities and organize fund-raisers. Executive House Council represents all classes. A total of fifty enthusiastic students from the three classes plan events which add to student life at LHS. A luncheon for LHS newcomers, a homecoming parade, and a Christmas party for the special education/LABB students were planned.

Student House, too, is made up of elected students from the three classes, working together to handle the more business-like aspect of the school. They run student elections and such, helping to make the entire student government more efficient. All of these groups are composed of dedicated, hard-working students, successfully attempting to enrich student life.

Creative Geniuses At Work

The art and literary magazine, Folio, and the Drama Club offer students an outlet for creativity. Both are showcases for LHS students' creative work — from designing sets and rehearsing lines to creating a poem or story. The fall production of the Drama Club was the Madwoman of Chaillot. Nora Laudani played the madwoman and offered her creative genius to the role.

The Folio is also an outlet for creative genius. Artwork and poems, stories and cartoons — almost anything goes at Folio! Melanie Thernstrom and Lisa Feinstein head the group of students who make posters, seek submissions, and publish and sell the magazine!

Students also make up the review board and decide which pieces will be featured on the magazines' pages. Mrs. Manion is the faculty advisor, and she supervises the decision making process.

By reading Folio or seeing a Drama Club production, LHS students are able to view firsthand creative geniuses at work!

A yearbook is an important part of high school. Ask any LHS student what they value the most and the yearbook will surely follow a car!

Each year a variety of students help put together the year's memories. The yearbook is a source of the latest fads and kookiest fashions. It records the best of times and even manages to capture the flavor of the hard times!

Often the yearbook records the important events at LHS. Football games have been covered in past yearbooks as has the increasing prices of lunches at school! Politics to movie stars, fashion to food, the yearbook has something for everyone.

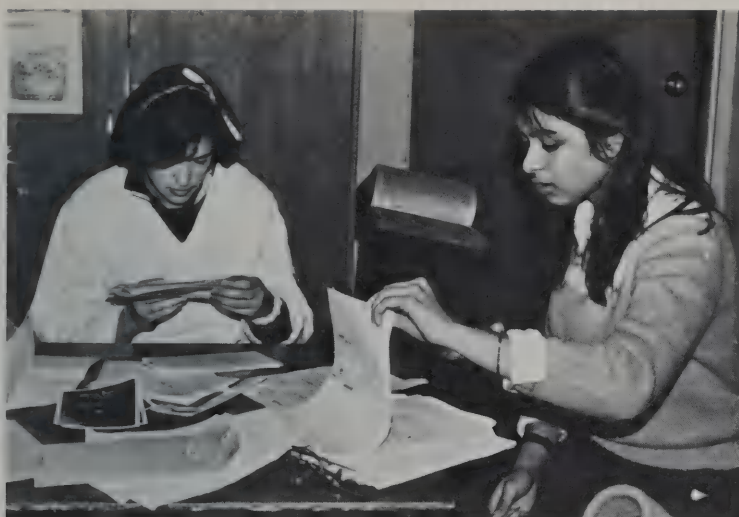

This year Sharon Goldmacher is the Editor-in-Chief of the yearbook. Students apply for staff positions at the end of the school year, and attend meetings as well as workshops throughout the following months.

The results of everyone's efforts remain treasured for years to come.

Foreign Exchanges

There are many opportunities at LHS for students to visit other countries and to interact with and host students from abroad.

A.F.S. (American Field Service) is a very active exchange program. This year two girls, one from Sri Lanka and the other from England, were students at LHS.

Y.F.U. (Youth For Understanding) is a similar program. There were five students attending LHS this year from this program. They were from all over the world: Brazil, Japan, Belgium, Germany, and Sweden.

The A.F.S. Club at the High School allows students to meet with those kids and to learn about their lifestyles. Parties and activities are planned which, in turn, allow exchange students to learn about our lifestyle.

A less lengthy but equally exciting exchange took place in the fall when eleven Venezuelan students and their advisor visited Lexington. The hosts, Spanish Club members, and many other er students, participated in dances, museum visits, historical tours, parties, and a hayride. In the spring, several LHS students visit their new friends at their school in Venezuela. With the help of these programs, Lexington High School students are definitely going places.

Songbirds

There are many different chorale groups at the high school and each one is unique. Mixed Chorus is a large group of students that sings a variety of pieces. It rehearses in small groups which unite for several performances during the year; the highlight of these productions is the Hallelujah Chorus performed in December.

Girls' Ensemble is a smaller group, although this is by no means a fault. It has a new jazzy apperance this year; long dresses have been replaced by the classy "black and white" look, and choreography has been added to complete the jazzy appearance. The Ensemble also performs several times during the year for Jazz Nites. Both of these groups put a large amount of effort into rehearsals, as is evident when they perform.

On the Way to the Top

Two exceptional groups of singers grace the LHS auditorium stage during the school year — Concert Choir and Madrigals. Concert Choir, directed by Mrs. Sandi Peaslee, is a group of approximately 40 devoted students who are chosen through auditions in June of every year. The members are chosen with the purpose of combining many different voices into one harmonic sound. The group works diligently every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon throughout the year and is rewarded by the warm rounds of applause they receive at their many concerts and the enjoyment they get from both the rehearsals and the performances.

Madrigals is an even more refined group of voices totalling fifteen. Many students audition for this elite group in the beginning of the school year, but only the exceptional singers are accepted. Each selected student is devoted to the work of the group, and this devotion creates the beautiful sound of the Madrigals. The choir is directed by the demanding yet sensitive Mr. DiDomenico, who puts much of his time into developing the harmonious and inspiring music. The enjoyment which the singers project is infectious, and their audiences feel a special closeness to the group.

Melody Makers

Stageband is composed of a select group of musicians who audition each year with Mrs. Peaslee. They performed this year at all three Jazz Nites and at the Spring Pops Concert. One of their more memorable times for sheer audience enjoyment was their appearance at the annual French Club Dinner in December.

The Jazz Improvisation Group is a performing class. Fifteen students, both boys and girls, demonstrated their enjoyment of all kinds of Jazz during three shows in December, February and May.

Wind Ensemble is another talented and distinguished group of musicians, directed by Mr. Donald Gillespie. Thirty-five students are chosen out of the group which auditions. Numerous concerts provide the stage for this group to manifest the melodies so special from wind instruments.

The Music Makers at LHS

LHS breeds a new type of cheerleader headed by captain Dave Harrington.

Two major music groups at the high school are Band and Orchestra. Many students are in both groups, this allows them to play many types of music on different occasions.

The Band, of course, supplies music at the football games. During the fall season, there is a shortage of wind players in Orchestra, but once winter rolls around, the orchestra picks up several Band members for two rehearsals a week.

Orchestra appearances include seasonal concerts as well as special performances by smaller groups formed within the Orchestra. Both Band and Orchestra, have large performances at Pops.

The two groups consisting of student musicians of varied talent are important parts of the musical world at LHS.

Another World

Spanish is more than a class to some students; it is fiestas, fund raising, and many, many meetings. The Spanish Club, with presidents Louise Norster and Patrick Richardson and advisors Senora Shaller and Senor Pavao, boasts some 55 members. In the fall the club's activities have been an election party, a Thanksgiving dinner, hosting Venezuelan exchange students, and carolling at a nursing home. Next came an excursion to Maine, a pool party, and many other events.

The French Club is yet another active club at LHS with about 150 members. This club consists of a group of eager students who get together every Wednesday afternoon to eat cookies, drink tea, and, hopefully, get something worthwhile accomplished. One of the French Club's most well-known activities is "Le Diner Francais" in December. The exchange of students between France and America is also a part of the French Club. Everyone has a great time and is guaranteed to gain at least five pounds on cookies, thanks to advisor Mr. Jenanyan.

The Latin Club is yet another "foreign language" group which is active at LHS. Although it may have fewer students involved than the French and Spanish Clubs, it is still very active and everyone has a great time.

Medical Careers Club

The Medical Careers Club is designed to orient students who are interested in the health field. Often students elect to learn about specific fields — veterinary medicine or physical therapy for example — while others choose to learn about a variety of medical careers.

The students have visited health facilities, invited speakers, and run several fundraisers: car washes, bake sales, and parties.

Interested students are encouraged to sign up in the nurse's office or with the officers. For medically oriented LHS'ers, the Medical Careers Club is just what the doctor ordered!

Students' Own Services

Having trouble with geometry? Does diagramming sentences leave you dangling? If so, there's help from S.O.S. — Students' Own Service Club.

LHS students sign up with Advisor Schofield and often spend one or more hours per week tutoring other students. In addition, the students often do fundraising, counseling, and supervise the handicapped.

The only requirement for joining is skill in at least one subject in order to tutor. Advisor Schofield often appoints a chairman at the beginning of the year.

SOS proves that students do get by with a little help from their friends.

Political Action Groups

Two new political action groups have started at LHS this year.

Students in Politics was started by junior Dara Menashi. The purposes of the club are to educate students about politics and help them get involved in campaigns for political candidates.

The officers are: President — Dara Menashi, Vice-President — Amy Dockser, Secretary — Leah Diskin, Treasurer — David Hilzenrath.

One other political activist club that began this year was the Students for Social Concerns. Founded by junior Eric Melcher, the club also publishes a bi-monthly newspaper, Alternative.

The group's purpose is to educate LHS students about world issues and social concerns. The group has held a forum on "The Philosophies of Communism" and has planned several more.

Interested students may join by attending meetings or by contacting Eric Melcher.

Divorced Kids Group (DKG)

The Divorced Kids Group, or DKG as the members call themselves, was formed to help teenagers confront and deal with their problems which arise from divorce. The members get to know one another well, and realize that if we need someone to talk to about a problem, there's always a person there to listen. Not only are we able to "spill our guts" if a problem arises, but we can learn about ourselves and become more independent.

We have our weekly meeting on Tuesdays during E-Lunch blocks. Occasionally we meet with other "Divorced Kids" from neighboring schools and towns, and we discuss similar and dissimilar experiences. Although it is time-consuming and requires some effort, it is rewarding in that we can also have a good time, while meeting new people. Students are welcome to join by contacting either the Guidance Department or Mr. Schofield in E-House.

Metropathways

Metropathways is a form of voluntary desegregation program existing to bring together kids from the city and the suburbs in an innovative learning program. This year is the seventh year of its existence in Lexington. Usually students attend class one day each week in the Greater Boston area, taking one course option for five hours. At the end of every semester, students present their work to over 300 parents, teachers and community members. Choreographed dances, music ensembles, art shows and presentations from social studies course options are all a part of the end of semester presentation. In Lexington, more than 35 students a year may participate in this program.

No, No Nannette

Monique Reed, don't you dare let go of me . . .

Many people attended this year's performance of "No, No Nannette" and applauded the acting, singing and dancing. However very few saw what it took to pull it together. If there was one thing to be said about the preparations for this show it would be that it was a "team" effort.

The directors were Mr. DiDominico and Mrs. Peaslee with Christina Gabriel choreographing and Josh Tracey and Audrey Ham in charge of the sets.

From the start, the need for dedication and co-operation was felt since there were so many people involved. Step by step things began to work out. The actors and chorus learned their lines and music and began "blocking" the action on stage. The dancers learned their steps dancing into the play. Once this was done, patience was tested by many long rehearsals spent "ironing out" and perfecting the total production. As the performance date drew closer, costumes and props were gathered. Finally the show was put on!

Black Student Union

The Black Student Union is a cultural group of minority students. After school in C House, or in a present member's home, the group meets to plan activities. This year the group sponsored a Black History display, lectures, artists, and field trips.

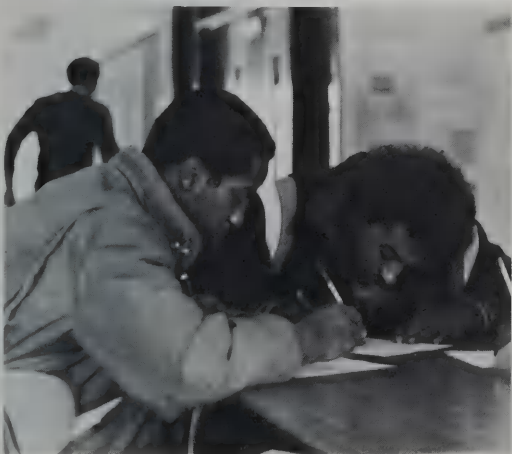

The group has also worked on many fundraising projects including a bake sale and a soul food dinner in order to raise scholarship funds for graduating students.

Additionally, the group meets to discuss and resolve the issues that confront LHS minority students. Jackie Sinclair, president of the Black Student Union, leads the discussion. She is aided by Cheryl Miller, the Vice-President, Regina Antwine, the Secretary, and Erika Eley, treasurer. Karen Hall is the group's advisor.

Interested students may join anytime by signing up with the Assistant Coordinator of METCO. The Black Student Union provides a voice for concerned minority students.

VICTORY...SPORTS A

A winning tradition exists in the Lexington High School sports program . . . whether it means winning contests, friends, or the satisfaction that comes with knowing, no matter what the outcome, that you gave it your best shot. Sports at LHS aren't just for the superstar or the natural athlete, for the teams are made up of the hard-working, dedicated kids who are there every day, putting in their time and leaving homework until the wee hours. Commitment underscores the theme of LHS sports: hard work makes anything possible. Perseverance during an athlete's season means:

- . . . pushing yourself through practice, even though you have a physics test tomorrow and a sprained ankle today
- . . . having butterflies in your stomach during tryouts that seem to show up before every game
- . . . throwing water balloons at sophomores during pep-rallies
- . . . getting psyched for the first game
- . . . wearing two pairs of socks, decorating your car in blue and gold, and shouting until you're hoarse on Thanksgiving
- . . . surviving on Cokes and fries between practice and homework
- . . . running so many laps that your legs keep going when you become delirious
- . . . going through more pairs of sweat socks than sheets of notebook paper in a week
- . . . shouting out the windows of the bus all the way home after a VICTORY
- . . .

Minuteman Football

The 1981 football team can look back on their season and be proud of what they accomplished. At the beginning of the year, they were not expected to win more than two games, but with hard work and a lot of "intestinal fortitude" they won twice as many as predicted.

Not one team in the league ever took the Minutemen for granted even though the team had only one returning letterman. Under Head Coach, Bill Tighe, the Minutemen were respectable and tough. Even on Thanksgiving Day when the Minutemen were down by two touchdowns going into the fourth period, they didn't give up. They scored two touchdowns consecutively, but unfortunately the ensuing kickoff to arch-rival Burlington was run back for a score making the difference in the game.

Not one Minuteman can ever forget: "Technique" Optional practice. "Caterpillars . . . All you need now is a piece of bread." "Go bake some doughnuts . . . Check to see if he has anything upstairs, Knock." The legend of B.N. Wax attack. "Go get some popcorn and tonic . . . Momma Mia." The four convicts. Revis' Merry-go-round. "Speak to me sweet lips." Whale tackle. "Aah . . . you got to hit him, pick him up, drive him, and you win the game." "AAAAAA . . . DOBEY!"

Chris Kenny keeps his cool even though the pressure is on.

Field Hockey: League Champs

This year's Lexington High School Varsity Field Hockey team, to the surprise of many who forecasted the outcome of the Middlesex League, topped their division with a 14-1-2 record. The team, coached by Sandra Curt, had its best season in many years due to the high level of skill and enthusiasm of its players.

Led by tri-captains Sandy Breitmaier, Cara Gleason, and Michele Ippolito, the team also started Liz Stevenson, Pauline Collins, Francie Zolot, Janet Dickerman, Chris Ippolito, Johana Breedon, Emily Tutun, and Goalie Sue Kurys. Although this combination was used, other players also contributed to the team's success: Mary Jean Hughes, Jeanne Thompson, Beth Barnhill, Amy Graf, Sue Tack, and Shelly Visalli.

Differing from other teams in the league, the Maids displayed a determination to succeed. Instead of one or two outstanding players as on other teams, the Maids had depth both offensively and defensively; people to rely on because of their stickhandling and ball control. Each player was willing to gather that "little extra" from within and cooperate with her teammates to form a Field Hockey team that was bound for the State Tournament.

Remember always, Lexington, to "Celebrate good times" when the team has reached "Fame." The ten sprints at the end of practice were tough and the August sessions painful but it all proved worthwhile when L.H.S. became #1 . . . MIDDLESEX LEAGUE CHAMPS!!!!

Season record: 14-1-2

Exuberant after another victory, Cara Gleason and her teammates jump for joy.

Cross Country: A Long Way Cross Country.

Warming up with duck duck goose.

The Lexington High School Cross Country team finished the season with a disappointing 2-7 record. However, despite the losing record the team managed to run respectably.

Graduating Seniors are Nick Afshartous, Todd Schatzki, Brad Chervin, Bob Watson, Rich Levey, Paul Vittimberga, Reed Hartel, and George Young.

Junior Dave Choslo and Sophomore Andy Fraser will provide a strong backbone for next years team.

This year the Girls' Cross Country team was entirely new; Captain Anne Fricker was the only returning runner. The Team runners improved individually, but as a whole Lexington had to forfeit several meets. Outstanding runner on the team, Ruth Sandy, was awarded Honorable Mention to the Middlesex League All Star Team. 1981 was the beginning of a "rebuilding decade."

Girls' Soccer — Alive and Kicking

This year's girl's soccer team had a great season, finishing with an outstanding record of 10-3-1. The girls' strong season qualified them for the state tournament, although they lost in the early rounds of play. This year's team was marked by positive thinking, aggressive play, and a winning attitude. Sue Bird and Debbie Winchell, co-captains, were named to the first Middlesex League team, and Julie Puchkoff and Sally Dagett made the second team, and an Honorable Mention went to Kathy Murphy. Minuteman Soccer; Best Record Ever.

The Boys' Varsity Soccer team, led by coach Robert Hartshorn, finished the regular season with a record of 15-2-1, the best record the soccer team has ever had. The Blue and Gold opened the season against archrival Wakefield, the defending league champs. The Minutemen scored twice in the first quarter and Wakefield never recovered as Lexington went on to win 3-1

The team's next big match was against Winchester, who, in a pre-season coaches' poll, was a unanimous pick to finish first in the league. The minutemen started strongly, but they could not hold on to their 2-1 lead as Winchester came from behind to win 4-

In the second half of the season Lexington lost the rematch with Wakefield at Wakefield 2-0, but that would be their last regular season defeat. The team then travelled to Winchester to try to avenge their loss earlier in the season. It was a close game that was very well played by both teams. Each side had numerous scoring chances, but the Minutemen's defense, led by goalie Doug Long, fullbacks Wayne Nablo, Dinesh Rajbhandary, Gary Friedman, Tom Avery and Doug Kennedy, Halfbacks Eric Swann and Dave Pietropaolo also kept Winchester from scoring. The Minutemen's offense, however, could not score either and the game ended in a scoreless tie.

The Minutemen went on to finish second in the league to Wakefield, and they entered the tournament with high hopes. They won their first game against Somerville on goals by co-captains Alex Walker and Paul Benkley, but lost in the quarterfinals to an undefeated Waltham team.

The Golf Team finished the year with a highly respectable 5-3 record. The strength of the team was provided by Middlesex League Individual Tournament player Paul Martin. The two other graduating members of the team were Dana Busa and Gerard Smiddy. Coach Thibeault laments the loss of this year's seniors, yet feels that the strength of the Juniors Keith Nelson and Jack Lima should provide the foundation for next year's team.

Volleyball

The Lexington High School Varsity and Junior Varsity Volleyball teams reached their "realistic Goals" this year in its second season of existence. Led by Senior Co-Captains Kym Stiglitz and Sheryl Bondy, the team proved dominant in spirit and persistence.

After much practice in the learning of all the legal rules of the game, coupled with plenty of effort and dedication, the entire team consisting of thirty-two members, showed vast improvement throughout the season. Always optimistic and ready to advise were Varsity coach Dave Lautman and Junior Varsity coach Dennis Heenan.

Super Swimmers!

The 1981 Varsity Girls' Swim Team, led by Captain Joni Gudeman, started the season slowly but raced to a strong finish. This year the girls welcomed a new coach, Margo Mahoney, who proved to be a real inspiration.

The season started with a tough loss against the team's arch rival, Acton-Boxboro. But the girls proved themselves with victories over Melrose, Burlington, and Winchester. The team planned to send at least ten girls to the Eastern Sectionals in mid-November. Unfortunately, there will be no State Meet this year because of budget cuts.

The team will lose 16 seniors including outstanding record holders: Wendy Johnson, Cheryl Klein, and Karen Gerenz. The enthusiasm and depth of the junior and sophomore class members remaining provide the team with an excellent base for next year's season.

Boys' Swimming: Swimming in Style

Jeff Martello Dives for Minutemen.

The Lexington High Boys' Swim Team had a successful season this year under the guidance of their new coach Peter Chamberlain. This year the Minutemen swam to a 5-6 record finishing a strong third in the Middlesex League behind Winchester and arch-rival Belmont.

The Minutemen started the season in style by quickly downing their first three opponents. However, the swimmers quickly fell from their pinnacle by losing to Belmont, Winchester, Bedford, and Weston in quick succession. Next the Minutemen meet a tough Haverhill team; after holding the lead for the whole meet, the boys lost in the last event. They upped their record midway through the season with wins over Burlington and Concord, however the boys lost their last meet of the year to Malden giving them their 5-6 record for the year.

Graduating seniors on the team are both co-captains Ken Anderson and Alan Jacobs. Also leaving the team will be Bob Colella, Mark Douglass, Larry Frank, Dan Kramer, Ben Jones, Bill Frazier, Eric Pearson, and Steve Rosen.

Although graduation will hurt the team, junior talent and sophomore potential will help fill the gap. Swimmers Steve Jankleson, Charlie Collias, Ken Shuman, Mark Soukup, and Rodney Parsons will return. Douglass!!! . . . not again!! Big Three DQ, Buy that girl a razor. Malden in the back stroke. Boys' Basketball: Hot Hoopsters

Although the 1982 team was the first in many years not to make the state tournament, this season was by no means a failure. This year's Minutemen finished with a record of 13-7, one victory short of the 70% necessary to qualify for the tourney. Despite their lack of both size and experience, these Minutemen were never out of a game as they outthustled almost every opponent.

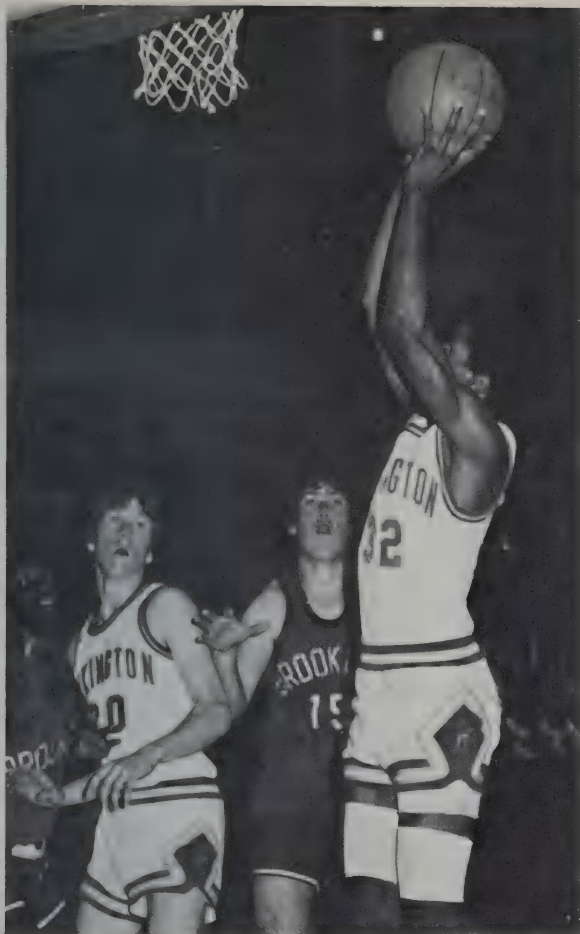

Leading scorers for Lexington were junior forward Mike Mascoll and sophomore Albert "Buzz" Middleton, both of whom will provide a strong foundation for future teams. Rounding out the starting five were seniors Lee Tyler, Rich Dyke and Co-Captain Bob Brennan. Other major contributors included Co-Captain Ron Settles, and Chris Perry, while seniors Peter Kilson and Paul Martin saw limited action. Also returning to next year's team will be juniors Jim Murphy and Derek George.

Girls' B-Ball: A PLUS!!

The Girls' Varsity Basketball team had a very successful basketball season. The Minutemaids started out strong by winning their first six games. The Maids were in the running for the Middlesex league title during most of the season. Although the Maids did not capture the Middlesex league, they did come in second in the league with a respectable 14-4 record.

Coach Sandy Curt's and assistant Laura Hoffman's awesome coaching and hard work made the Minutemaids outstanding in the league. The team's intense enthusiasm and strong team spirit spelled success. Everyone contributed to the team in one way or another.

Next year, the Minutemaids can look forward to another tremendous season. Four starters will be returning. With the experience the team has gained this year, the Maids will be sure to be one of the best teams in the league and possibly the best.

Wrestling: The Mighty Grapplers

Despite a trying season, the 1981-82 LHS wrestling team posted four major wins and maintained 26 active wrestlers. The team was plagued by countless injuries, inexperience, and ski trips.

The members of the Squad profited from the guidance and enthusiasm contributed by head coach Sam Kafrissen and assistant coach Doug Ayotte. Co-captains Eric Feingold and Andy Macey along with seniors Dana Busa, Tom Tarr, Bernie Sacco, and Ward Burke proved essential in developing team spirit.

Ice Hockey . . . Blades and Boards

Unforeseen losses prevented the Minutemen from obtaining a state tourney birth this year. Second year coach Bill McDuff and his Minutemen fell shy by just one point of qualifying for the state tournament.

The all-star line of seniors Rob Wilson, Robbie Good, and Eric Faiola led the Minutemen in scoring. Backed by senior all-star defensemen Pat Barbieri and John Ouellette proved to be a top-notch starting line-up. Senior goalie Ara Masrof had an outstanding season minding the nets for the Minutemen.

Girls' Track

It's all mine!

Strong, individual performances characterized the Lexington High School's 1981-1982 track team. The team was led by co-captains Diane Spillane and Sue Bird. Strong performances were constantly executed by Robin Carson in the hurdles, Julie Puchkoff in the 45 yard dash, Diane Spillane and Sue Bird in the 300 and 600, and Patti Jean White in the 1000 and high jump, Ruth Sandy in the mile, and Alison Banks in the two mile. Returning seniors were Kathy White and Karen Elias in the hurdles and two mile respectively, and Louise Norster in the high jump.

Unfortunately, the team did not uphold its League title attained the previous year. This year, there were leaders for each event; however, the team lacked depth. Even so, the effort exerted by many individuals provided inspiration for the team as a whole. Good luck next year.

Boys' Indoor Track

This year's Boys' Indoor Track Team, led by co-captains Marco Dirks and Bob Watson was characterized by good performance in a variety of events. The team started off with three losses to the league's powerhouses, but finished the season with a strong record. Outstanding individual performances were made by Dave Soderstrom in the hurdles; Ken Koocher, Eric Cortell, Marco Dirks and Scott Bender in the sprints; Brad Chervin, John Steel and Bob Watson in the middle distances; Andy Fraser, Nick Afshartous and Todd Schatzki in the long distances; John Steel in the high jump; and Rich Hartogenesis in the shotput. Even though plagued by lack of depth and a large number of injuries, the team maintained its strong spirit and fortitude.

Girls' Gymnastics

Claire Conceison keeps her balance on beam.

Pam Andrellos shows the flexibility and concentration that are important to gymnastics.

Once again the girls' gymnastics team began its season with a new coach, Dotty Pappas. This did not prove to be a detriment, though, for she is well-liked and provides the team with spirit. She encourages the gymnasts to try new tricks, always willing to lend her full support. The coach had an optimistic outlook for the season, which the girls upheld. They began with a win over Wakefield, followed by a defeat to Reading and a painful one-point loss to Woburn. This did not discourage the girls, however, for they were determined to be victorious. This in turn provided good competition and fine results.

The team will miss departing tri-captains Laura Bertolini, Cheryl Quinan, and Kathy Seidel, as well as Julie Buchfier, but there is no doubt that the Juniors and Sophomores will maintain respectable standing in the league next year.

Cheryl Quinan performs a split on beam.

Readying for her next move, Barbara Perlmutter looks down at the beam.

Flyin' high on bars is Nora Maroney.

Strength and flexibility help maintain this position.

Fred shows his unique talents to be quite proficient.

Boys'

Gymnastics

The Boys' Gymnastics team shows great improvement over years in the past. Coach William Cargill is pleased with the boys' continuing hard work and dedication. Leading the team in the all-around is Capt. Michael Freier, followed by Fred Spaziani. Co-Captain Jeff Mello is third leg of the teams' all-around competitors. Everyone has one event which he specializes in, along with minor routines on the other apparatus. The boys are training hard and are eager to compete, hoping to qualify for the Colonial League Meet; their long range goal being to compete in the state competition.

"No brain — no pain", Think Fontecchio!; A coach, not a dictator; Oh no! it's Bacon; You can do that later; many hands make for light work; Let the girls workout alone; if there's no blood . . . you allright!! Mr. Doomsberry??

Prowess on the rings.

Spring: Sunny Days, Successful Games

Spring brings changes to LHS Sports: practice moves from the gym and field house to the baseball diamond and tennis courts. Sweatsuits are traded for shorts and tee-shirts, and the lacrosse sticks are taken out of the closet to make room for the now unused basketballs. Still the same, though, is the mutual support felt among athletes, coaches, and entire teams while practicing, criticising, and competing on near-by fields. Common sights are tennis players cheering during track meets, lacrosse players holding their breaths on on the 3 and 2 pitch, and smiles on the faces of practicing players when a noisy, victoriously returning bus drives along Worthen Road. All these are signs of excitement and school spirit in the spring. This spirit of success lives. On warm sunny days Lexington fields will always be filled with students in blue and gold.

Goalie Sue Kurys smiles under all her gear. (Right)

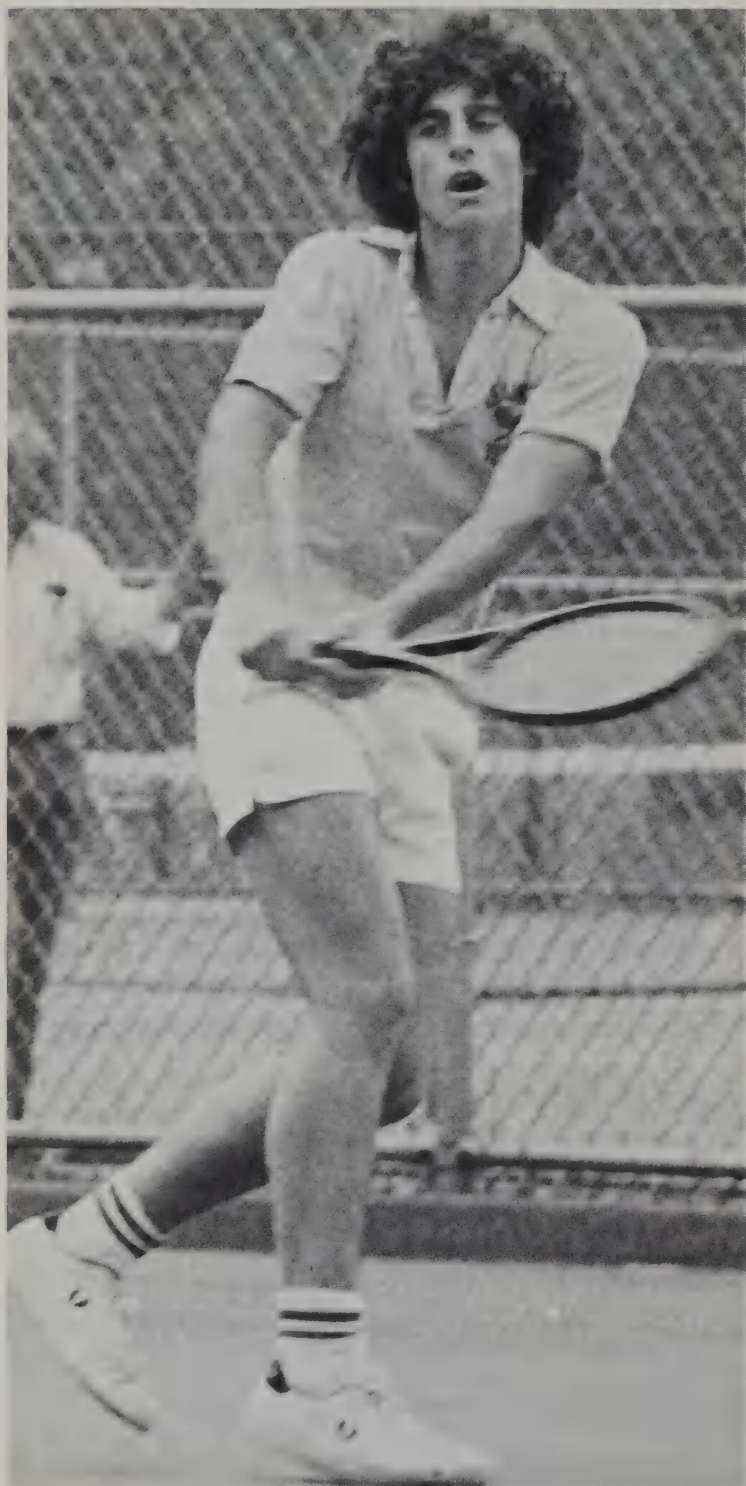

Senior Dave Sodorstrom gives it his best as he approaches the finish line. (Top)

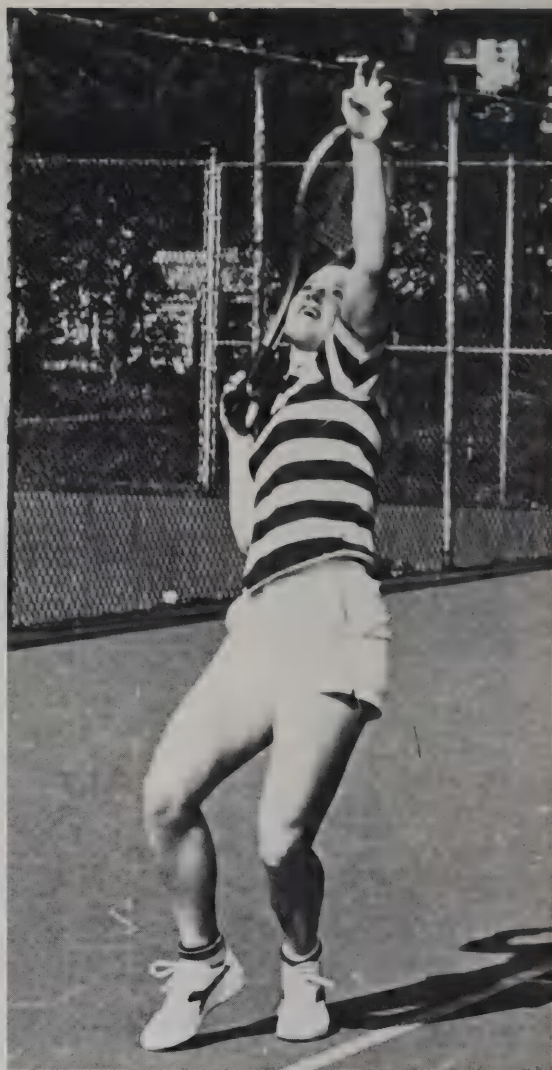

Marco Dirks quickens the pace as he runs the 220 dash. (Left)

The pressure's on as Sue Bird leaves her Burlington opponent in the dust. (Right).

A beautiful overhand swing is displayed by an LHS tennis player.

Senior David Criss comes through with a backhand.

Shep Davidson puts it where it counts.

Take me out to the ballgame . . . (Top)

Wayne Nablo pitches in a fast one. (Bottom)

The skill of the softball team pulls through. (Below)

PEOPLE

The heart-beat of LHS is the people. The daily flow of students and teachers is what keeps LHS going. Although everyone at the high school has different friends, interests and responsibilities, all seem to work together and all work to make the year the best it can be.

The students work with the teachers through the year and some form lasting bonds. And the Administration keeps everything running as smoothly as possible. People are what Lexington High School is all about.

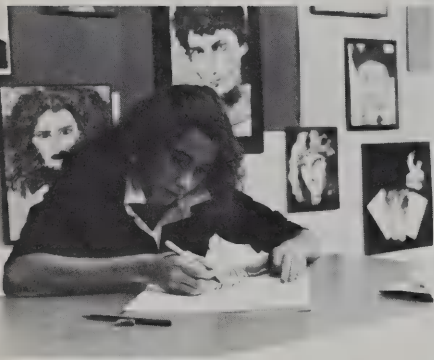

Faces

Clea Chemela is among many famous faces in the art room.

Danielle Geissler and Debbie Furman peek around from behind a tree to show their smiles. (Above)

Steve Fuery, Loretta Barry, Scott Abadjian, Tammy Rushton, and Rich Cerasoli form a welcoming committee.

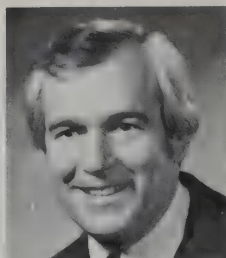

Kara Wright concentrates on showing spirit for LHS.

"I'll have to think about that one," remarks Jackie Sliney.

The First Twelve Days of High School

On the first day of high school the teachers gave to us a brand new map of L.H.S.

On the second day of high school a sophomore said to me, "Let's go to the cookout and eat beneath the tree."

On the third day of high school a sophomore said to me, "Please help me get to room G63."

On the fourth day of high school a sophomore said to me, "I'd like to have that doughnut, but it's up too high for me."

On the fifth day of high school a sophomore asked of me, "When you vote for elections won't you please vote for me?"

On the sixth day of high school a sophomore said to me, "Do broken lockers open with a master key?"

On the seventh day of high school a teacher said to me, "The first week of school and you've missed blocks C and D!"

On the eighth day of high school a sophomore sighed to me, "See that adorable quarterback? He put his hand on my knee!"

On the tenth day of high school a sophomore looked at me, "Orientation? Oh no! Why me?"

On the eleventh day of high school a sophomore gave a call, "Can we only smoke behind the science lecture hall?"

On the twelfth day of high school a sophomore shrieked at me, "Only three more years, and then we will be free!"

Sharon Hayes boasts, "I ate the whole thing!"

A Declaration of Independence

Sophomores have experienced many new found freedoms as incoming students. Though some were nervous at the thought of high school, most were eager to participate in and enjoy the numerous activities and opportunities available at L.H.S.

Lunchtime, for example, was a different experience in high school than it was in junior high. As a sophomore, one had the option of eating at any of the four snack bars and cafeterias in the school. Some also ventured downtown, patronized the stores in Lexington, and ate their lunches while rushing back so they wouldn't be late for their next class.

The five minute interim between classes was hectic, but once sophomores were adjusted, it became routine. In fact, the more fleet-footed could grab a bite to eat, have a small conversation with colleagues, and search for that special someone in record time!

Many sophomores were also stunned by the wide variety of activities, clubs, and athletics that they could join. Whether one's interests lay in music, art, foreign languages, sports, or some other area, they were immediately intrigued. An added bonus of joining the organizations was the exposure to new people and the chance to make new friends.

Sophomore year can be a trying experience with increasing responsibility. However, with so much activity and new freedom, it was found to be an exciting and rewarding period of individual growth and maturity.

The Beginning

As the deadlines for college applications and long avoided essays approach for Seniors, Juniors begin their yearly escapade of PSAT's, achievements, and SAT's. Without fail, the Unknowns in Princeton continually challenge Junior test takers, as was seen from the expressions of students as they left their designated rooms on October 31.

Although the PSAT is meant to be a practice or preliminary run, nerves are high as the Juniors realize that they are on their way to taking one of the many important tests of their high school years. Therefore, a number of students enroll in courses either at the high school or privately, guaranteed to raise one's score.

The worst part of the process, however, is the interminable waiting period to receive the scores. From that point on, Juniors plan strategies to conquer in the upcoming college admissions' games.

The Molding Of A Future

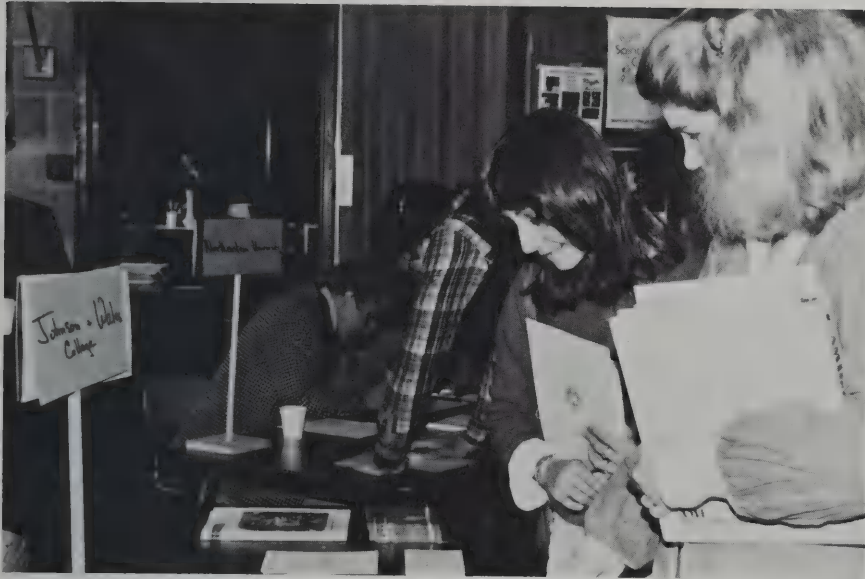

Throughout the year we have seen our Senior friends in various stages of planning their futures. They have been occupied with applying to, and visiting colleges — as well as looking for jobs.

While some of us are planning to go right into the job market from high school, many wish to continue our education. For those planning to go to college, the mini college fairs here at L.H.S. provide us with information on a broad spectrum of college choices. As the school year comes to a close, most of us have narrowed down our list of colleges; however, there are still many colleges to visit and deadlines to meet.

Our attempts to find the right college or occupation are just the beginning of the molding of our futures. As we discover our strengths and desires, we look ahead to what our career choices might be and what the future holds for us.

The Class of '83 is an ambitious one, and we have only just begun to aim for our goals.

Look out, world; we're on our way to the top!!

Erica Stuhr checks over the possibilities.

Underclass Action

Jane O'Leary contemplates going either to the library or to Brigham's.

Beth Cronson is leader of the pack.

Cary Library, an intellectual oasis.

Niki Levin and friend enjoy conversation, ■ juicy apple, and warm fall sunshine.

A little relish, a little catsup, another Lexington lunch delectable.

The fall barbecue, an underclass tradition welcomes sophomores in style.

An endless collection of papers gets longer and longer . . .
Artist Alison Kinsey explains, "It was about three feet tall, green, and . . ."

Here we are, the class of 1982. Finally. We have come a long way. From the ninth graders of Clarke, Diamond, and Muzzey we were merged together to begin our climb to the top, as one.

During the past three years our class has grown and matured. Lexington High School has given us the opportunity to develop and learn as individuals. It has helped guide us to the endless paths we all will choose to follow. We were given assistance when we needed it in discovering ourselves; our talents and our faults. Installed in us was a sense of self confidence and accomplishment through challenges and questions we constantly faced, and will forever face in the future.

As we all now leave and go our separate ways, one might think to the past; the foundation of life not only provided by school, but by our peers as well. The friends that were so much a part of our everyday life, will now fade into fond, everlasting memories. The good times not just within, but that extended far beyond the bounds of campus grounds. They were just roots we established as we branch separately into the future.

And now we leave, to pursue the goals we've dreamed of . . . to make them reality.

-Sheryl Bondy

The Class of '82

Mrs Ayers,

It was great
going to Canada with you.
Thanks for convincing the Adults to let us have a "dixie cup" of champagne! Maybe some day the "Ice Bags" will make me going to try an' make CANADA next year. Your Great and we all love you! Thank for everything!
Keep this place going! Love Pica

"Seniors"

Mrs Ayers -

You're the best Hayden employee having someone easy going like you makes this whole place bearable
Here's to another great year
& having you as a friend
& all us here. You're always someone we can count on!!

Love ya always,

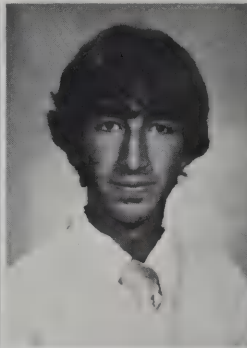

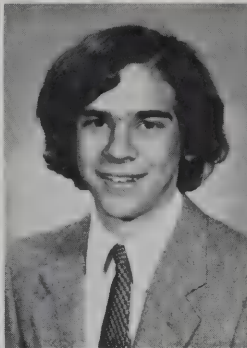

Sharon

P.S. Keep your

Goodbye . . .

Thanks for the Memories.

LHS students point the way

"Okay, on the count of three everyone yell boo!"

"Our side is better than your side."

Lexpress is going to take us places!

Going Places

The people at Lexington High School are on the move, spirited and determined. These qualities shine through no matter what the activity. Whether it be winning a game, cheering on a team or selling lollipops. The students at LHS give their all. The Debate-a-thon and the school musical are examples of the dedication that students have to make life at Lexington High diverse and exciting. In 1982 the students at Lexington High School are determined to "Go places!"

Where have all the students gone?

Working on Yearbook has taught me many different things. Yearbook is a big responsibility. People have to be able to communicate and work with each other to meet the deadlines. This year's staff, through hard work, has produced one of this school's best yearbooks. I would like to acknowledge and deeply thank everyone who has helped in putting this book together.

Thank you!
